THE JUBILEE.

Beginning of the Celebration in Honor of an Archbishop.

HIGH CHURCHMEN PRESENT.

The Pope Sends a Representative with a Gift. Interest Not Confined to Catholics.

Elaborate Programme Prepared for the Week—Cardinal Gibbons Will Officiate at the Celebration of the Pontifical Mass.

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—The celebration of Archbishop Kenrick's jubilee, which began this morning, will be in keeping with the noble character of the venerable and venerated prelate. No event in the Catholic church in America has brought together so many distinguished dignitaries. All the church's ecclesiastics will be present, and his holiness, the pope, has sent a representative with a gift. In St. Louis the interest has not been confined to the Roman Catholics. Many prominent citizens, of all creeds, have given their time and means to aid in making the occasion one of the grandest of its nature witnessed.

The Christian Brothers' college gave an entertainment to-day in honor of the Most Rev. Archbishop Kenrick. At the college the various prelates and churchmen were present.

Solemn services of thanksgiving were held in all the churches of the city. At most of them visiting prelates, priests, and sermons, according to the occasion were delivered by the visiting orators.

To-night Archbishop Ireland delivered a lecture at Music Hall on "The Past and Future of the Church." Additional interest was the fact that Cardinal Gibbons attended the lecture. Pontifical mass will take place to-morrow, when the Most Rev. Archbishop Kenrick will not officiate as the celebrant, that duty being assigned to Cardinal Gibbons.

The jubilee sermon will be delivered by his grace, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

In the afternoon a banquet will be tendered to the archbishop and the visiting clergy. The torchlight procession on Monday night will be a grand affair, between twenty-five and thirty thousand men participating.

On Tuesday morning three thousand or more children will raise their voices in hymns of rejoicing and praise. In the evening the church choir will unite to render one of the most magnificent compositions ever composed.

During the week a number of receptions will be tendered Archbishop Ryan and the visiting dignitaries.

ASSASSINATED.

Two Men Killed and Three Wounded—Ruff Harvey

MURDERED BY THE MATTHEWS

Who Charge Him With the Seduction of Their Sister—The Matthews Are Badly Hurt, Ely Rostorovich Slightly Injured.

Special to the Gazette. MARSHALL, HARRISON COUNTY, TEX., Nov. 29.—The following was published in a Extra to-day and gives further details of a tragedy that was published in today's Gazette, as well as a full account of another.

Two terrible tragedies occurred in Harrison county Saturday night, in which W. R. (Ruff) Harvey and Hilary Saunders lost their lives, John and Luther Matthews were badly hurt, Ely Rostorovich slightly injured and a horse killed.

W. R. Harvey, Gene and Hilary Saunders were in town together Saturday, and went home together in a wagon. At about 6:30 Saturday night Harvey was called to his gate by Luther Matthews and shot with a gun, falling in the gate. At the time his wife and sister putting supper on the table and heard the gun fire, but supposed it was a neighbor who had fired his gun to get his dog back. About 7 o'clock Hilary Saunders went to the Harvey residence to stay with Mr. Harvey that night. He saw a man lying in the gate, but supposed it was a negro who had been to town and came home drunk. On going into the house he asked for Mr. Harvey, but was told by the ladies that they did not know where he was. He took a match, went to the gate and found that his friend was a corpse. He immediately came to town and reported the fact, when Justice Perry, Constable Hunt, Deputy Sheriff Her McKeay, County Clerk E. T. Rostorovich, Frank Cook, Will Powell, John Coleman and George Wolf mounted horses and rode out to hunt for the assassin. John Murrell joined them in the country.

When the party had reached a point about seven miles from town (one mile north of the scene of the murder), Messrs. Powell, Wolf, Hunt and Coleman, who were in the lead, met two men in the road, riding in a walk. Coleman noticed that one of the men carried a gun, and spoke of the fact, asking Constable Hunt if it would not be well to stop them. This crowd turned, and the parties who had met put spurs to their horses and ran down the road, the others pursuing. For a short time the party shot, without doing any execution. Someone of the rear party from town heard the horses running and said: "Listen to those horses. We had better get out of the road." Frank Cook did turn out of the road. Justice Perry was run against by one of the fleeing parties, who proved to be John and Luther Matthews, and nearly knocked from his horse.

John Murrell pulled his pistol and ordered the parties to stop, but they did not do so, and he was about to shoot, when Justice Perry told him not to do so. Ely Rostorovich and Hilary Saunders, the latter a cousin of Harvey, heard the firing and supposed that the murderers had been caught with a gun, and they ran on at full speed, in order to assist their friends. These two and the Matthews met in the road, and the shock was terrible. All were thrown down. Hilary Saunders' horse was run over and killed instantly. One of Rostorovich's ankles was sprained, and one finger knocked out of place. Luther Matthews was badly hurt about the head, one eye almost knocked out, and one leg broken. He was spitting blood Sunday morning. John Matthews' left leg was badly broken. One leg of John Matthews' horse was broken in three places. Rostorovich's horse was considerably injured.

John Murrell got a new pistol and a box of cartridges from back of the Matthews, and the gun with which Harvey was murdered was found on the ground, with the stock broken off.

The Matthews were brought to town and jailed. They admitted the killing, and said it was done because Harvey had seduced their sister, whom they say was in a delicate situation. They stated that Luther, who is about nineteen years of age, shot the party, and that John, who is about twenty-four, waited in Harvey's field; that the gun was thrown from Luther's hand by the horse jumping when he fired, and left it where it fell. The brothers then went to Mrs. Blackwell's, where John Matthews lived; but afterwards went back and got the gun.

W. R. Harvey was about twenty-eight years of age and was married on the 14th instant to Miss Cora Meadows. He was a native of Harrison county, well known and universally liked. He had, we learn, inherited gold fever from a party from town. Some of his friends charge that the true reason for his murder was that he was trying to earn a reward of $500 that he had heard was offered in Georgia for an uncle of the Matthews, who is said to be in this county.

Hilary Saunders was about seventeen years old, and an excellent young man. Owing to their coming to the Belford Publishing company of New York to recover royalties on the sales of her book, "Jefferson Davis, Ex-President of the Confederate States," a statement by his brother, Hilary, was given by Jefferson Davis and completed by Mrs. Davis after Mr. Davis' death. The company did not live up to its contract with Mrs. Davis, it alleged, and she sued to recover possession of the publication.

Old man Matthews was arrested to-day and placed in jail. The trial will come off Monday or Tuesday. The doctor states that the Matthews' wounds will not likely prove fatal.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS

Sues the Belford Publishing Company of New York to Recover Royalties on Her Book.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis has, through her attorney, George H. Belford, filed suit against the Belford Publishing company of New York to recover royalties on the sales of her book, "Jefferson Davis, Ex-President of the Confederate States," a statement by his brother, Hilary, was given by Jefferson Davis and completed by Mrs. Davis after Mr. Davis' death. The company did not live up to its contract with Mrs. Davis, it alleged, and she sued to recover possession of the publication.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

HOW THE SABBATH WAS SPENT AT CORNICANA.

All the Pulpits Filled by Methodist Ministers—A Love Feast—A Grand Sermon by Bishop Fitzgerald.

Special to the Gazette.

CORNICANA, NAVARRO COUNTY, TEX., Nov. 29.—To-day was a high day in church circles in this city. All the pulpits were open to the members of the conference, and many were the expressions of commendation of the services.

The center of interest, of course, was at the Methodist church. At 9 a. m. the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, North Texas district, opened its sessions in this city. It consisted of members of the conference and the local churches, and was a most successful one. The most notable of these was Rev. Mr. Rose of Hill county, an old man and a most successful of the men who carried the revolution through to success, among them Alexander Hamilton and General Lee. This is no argument and should have no weight at all upon the Democratic caucus in the selection of a man to preside at the national convention, but it is the best qualified man, the mere fact that he was born in England ought not to disqualify him.

After More Money.

The managers of the Chicago fair not only had their delegates in Washington during the meeting of the national Republican committee to try and influence the gentlemen who were at the head of the Republican affairs, but they tried the president also to see if they could not get a recommendation in his message to try and influence the Democratic party to give a penny of the government's money for this fair. It was distinctly understood when it was placed in Chicago that Chicago would raise enough money to conduct it. Mr. Springer, a leading member in this state, declared the city would raise $25,000,000 if necessary.

Senator Pugh on Silver.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Senator Pugh of Alabama has written a letter denying emphatically a statement made by Senator Carlisle that any Democratic senator or congressman who supports the coinage of silver has expressed any desire, intention or purpose to abandon or ignore the vital issue of tariff reform. "All that the friends of silver demand," says Senator Pugh, "is what the Democratic party in every national convention has done without a single exception: keep the taxation and currency together, as co-ordinate and equal subjects of remedial legislation. Neither tariff reform nor financial reform has ever been ignored or abandoned, nor one subordinated to the other in any Democratic platform during the lifetime of the party. If the friends of silver are to be classed as unwise counselors and unsafe leaders, because they insist that the silver issue shall not be abandoned or ignored in the presidential contest of 1892, but that it shall go hand in hand and receive the same treatment with all other issues made in the Democratic platform, especially when they are so classed and condemned at the instance and in the interest of those Democrats who threaten the free coinage bill in the last house of representatives. All the friends of silver have to say is that they are accustomed to such classification and hope to be able to persevere in the vindication of their convictions and integrity. As Democrats we are free citizens, and we protest against being retired from the councils of the Democratic party because they are unwilling to allow the corporate guard of gold representatives to leave China Station and proceed forthwith to Honolulu. "Wilcox and Byrd, two professional revolutionaries of Hawaii, are at it again," said a Honolulu resident who arrived here yesterday. "They have a well-grounded feeling of discontent to work on, and although an election comes off inside of three months no one would be surprised were an armed rebellion to be in full force at that time. The Hawaiian government has practically no army, and the queen looks to the presence of foreign men-of-war for the preservation of peace. American sentiment is growing continually on the islands. A Mexican at Bay Drives the Steel Into His Assailant with Fatal Effect.

Special to the Gazette.

GREENVILLE, HUNT COUNTY, TEX., Nov. 29.—Last night Muzzio's restaurant was the scene of a cutting affray which resulted fatally. Salvatore Alfano, head cook, was cut in the stomach by Vito Garella, an assistant, from the effects of which he died this evening. The men had been drinking during the day, and in the afternoon Alfano made a war play with Garella with a knife and said he was going to make mince meat out of his carcass. Garella immediately broke for the door, but finding he could not get out, grabbed up a long carving knife which was lying on the table to defend himself. This he did very ably; at the first pass he made he caught Alfano in the left side, cutting across his stomach and coming out on the right side, completely disemboweling him. When Garella realized what he had done he immediately broke for tall timber, going in the direction of Celeste. Officers started in pursuit at once and overhauled him at Celeste, bringing him back and lodging him in jail this morning. Alfano was carried to his room and received prompt medical attention, and it was thought he would recover, although he was in a stupor and did not take notice of what was going on, but after dinner he commenced sinking rapidly and at 1:30 was dead. Garella will have his preliminary hearing to-morrow. The general belief is that he was justifiable in doing as he did.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The choice of Minneapolis by the Republican committee as the place to hold the national convention shows that the Republicans are already alarmed at the condition in the Northwest. In fact, all the arguments that were made in favor of Minneapolis were that it was necessary to hold the convention here to bring back the Republicans to their allegiance to the party. The same argument was made as to Detroit, the gentlemen from that state declaring that unless the convention was held there Michigan was doubtful. The same thing was said as to Nebraska and as to California, so that the Democrats may calculate, according to Republican authority, upon the electoral votes of Michigan and Nebraska and California because the convention was not held in either of those states. The Democratic committee meets December 8, and already several cities are preparing to contest for the honor of holding that convention.

Boston asks for it on the ground that Massachusetts for two years has gone Democratic, that New Hampshire went Democratic in the last election and Rhode Island and Connecticut also, and claims that the great Democratic convention was held in the principal city of New England, the electoral vote of all those states could be secured. The Democratic party, however, is not so easily won over. The committee meets the probabilities are that the convention will be held in New York, perhaps at Buffalo, where there are ample accommodations.

Don't Hurt Him Any.

The Republican organs have already commenced an attack upon Mr. Crip as a candidate for the speakership because he is English born. They will say, doubtless, that Crip is a Britisher, and that he is a traitor, and will endeavor to arouse the antagonism of the Irish-American vote for that reason. But there is nothing in it. Mr. Crip is an American. It is true he was born in England, but so were some of the ablest and most successful of the men who carried the revolution through to success, among them Alexander Hamilton and General Lee. This is no argument and should have no weight at all upon the Democratic caucus in the selection of a man to preside at the national convention, but it is the best qualified man, the mere fact that he was born in England ought not to disqualify him.

A SOCIAL SENSATION.

A Cincinnati Story of Marriage, Divorce and Suit for Maintenance.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A Cincinnati dispatch printed here is as follows: "The preliminary steps have been taken in a suit that will create a social sensation. The principals are Charles C. Hall of the Hall safe and lock company, and Alia Belle Anderson-Hall, daughter of a Baptist clergyman. Her story is that on returning from Europe she met and married a newspaper man whose name she does not wish to divulge. They separated after a year, and a month later she read a notice of his death. A year later she met Mr. Hall and was secretly married to him in Chicago in the presence of friends of both, and came with him to this city, though at his request the marriage was kept secret. Several months ago she was horrified to find her first husband was alive, and she quietly obtained a divorce. Hall heard of it, and being free declined to remarry her, though he still supported her. In the meantime Mr. Hall had become engaged to a Miss Y. Yesterday he was practically sued for breach of promise by Mrs. Anderson-Hall, but was given until noon Saturday to accept certain propositions. Mr. Hall admits the marriage, but says that now being free, he does not desire to remarry the lady, but will pay her reasonable damages. Mr. Hall moves in high society and no one suspected that he was a married man."

SIN AND FASHION.

They Fight for Possession of Washington Square.

THE GENERAL SIGNIFICANCE

Of a Marble Arch that is to Cost a Quarter of a Million—A True of Vice May Be a Return of Modish Decency.

Special to the Gazette.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A fight for possession of Washington Square, waged between fashionable folks and a horde of vicious ones, is at its height. Today's development in the battle raises the question whether Capt. Brogan, the police commandant of the precinct, shall have his place in the square, or whether during the past two years, but it is only within a month or so that he has assumed a more belated position. Washington square used to be a fashionable quarter of the town. Alexander T. Stevens built his first mansion three blocks to the southward. The late Commodore Vanderbilt stoutly refused to move his residence from a street just off the square, and a number of "old families" have stuck persistently to the neighborhood. However, the extension of business from downtown toward the north has been a serious detriment to the square. In the neighborhood of the square, some of them quite unpalatable, were set there in plenty; the lowest and most repulsive "dives" were maintained there, and it came to be an accepted fact that Washington square was a hopeless center of infamy.

The first effort at reclamation took the form of several new apartment houses in which rooms were let to bachelors only. Next, Mrs. Hicks-Lord reconsidered her determination to move away from her fine house facing the square, although some of her furniture had been packed already. She called a meeting of representatives of honored families, whom she believed, would prefer to remain in that neighborhood if they might do so without rubbing elbows any longer with society's outcasts. The result of the conference was a private organization of a dozen or more wealthy persons determined upon a fight to restore Washington square to fashionableness. Their first important move was to start a subscription for a fine memorial of George Washington, and therefore appropriate to the square. Liberal subscriptions were made, and a wooden, full-sized model was erected in time for the three days' parade celebrating the centennial anniversary of Washington's inaugural. This arch spanned the wide passage, which would be Fifth avenue, if that thoroughfare did not, in name, stop at the park— a passage which at the other side of the square merges into South Fifth avenue, a ludicrous contrast to the fashionable Fifth avenue, from which it takes its name. The structure is a beautiful one of marble, and will cost a quarter of a million when completed. Already it has built in stone, its projectors and principal contributors meant that it should emphasize, and help carry out, their purpose of rehabilitating the square with ultra-fashionableness. The "old families" are maintaining their residences there, several deserters have returned, half a dozen apartment houses of the fashionable type have been erected, and the battle against vice has been more than half won.

Now comes an incidental engagement in which the police figure badly. The precinct containing Washington square has been more productive of "contributions"—in other words, payments for immunity from merited prosecution and punishment—than any other in the city. For a long time the infamous Tenderloin precinct, adjacent to uptown hotels and theaters, has outdone it in that respect. The fashionable victors for Washington square have reached a point now where they mean to drive out utterly the already demoralized and neglected people who make a business of vice. The police have been called upon to do the work of extermination. It is said they refused point blank. Next they made a few desultory raids upon the more notorious resorts, and then did their utmost by police action to save the arrested persons from any severe punishment. At this point in the struggle Police Justice Hogan was enlisted on the side of the fashionable ones, and he undertook to thwart the police. This battle is now on. Police Captain Brogan's removal from the precinct is demanded on one hand, all the influence of vice in the neighborhood have rallied on the other side, and the outcome is a little uncertain, although it looks as though the outcasts would have to give Washington square back to "society."

Beals Will Have to Testify.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 29.—Prosecuting Attorney Marcy K. Brown, in an interview to-night, stated that Beals had nothing whatever to do with the prosecution of the prisoners further than that he might be called upon to testify at the trial. If he declined to testify then he might be imprisoned for contempt, or arrested as an accomplice after the fact in assisting in the escape of the man to whom the ransom was paid.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, 1 a. m.—For Eastern Texas, northwest winds and fair weather, winds shifting to south and warmer and generally fair Tuesday.
